Topophilia: Process, Practice and Place

We would like to welcome you to this one-day symposium at Edinburgh College of Art (eca). Beth Legg, PhD researcher at eca initiated this symposium as part of her practice-led doctoral research within the Jewellery and Silversmithing department. This event coincides with the opening of 'A Sense of Place; New Jewellery from Northern Lands', a major contemporary jewellery exhibition that runs from May 18th – September 16th at the National Museum of Scotland (NMS). The 'Topophilia Project' was conceived and initiated by Beth who worked closely with Rose Watban at the museum to facilitate the exhibition. More information can be found at www.nms.ac.uk/senseofplace. This small invited symposium is attended by thirteen of the sixteen makers participating in this exhibition from Scotland, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Norway and Iceland.
